ABOUT YOUR CHILBLAINS!

What are they? A mild form of frost-bite—a chilling of the part to set up, causing a tingling pain, excessive irritation and often swelling. Zam-Buk cures chilblains by drawing out the inflammation, thus reducing the pain and irritation and ending the swelling.

Miss Anna Leppard of Beaverdale, Ont., says: "I suffered agonies from chilblains and used many remedies, but nothing gave me any ease until I used Zam-Buk, which, after a little perspiration, completely rid me of this painful ailment."

Regular applications of Zam-Buk will prevent a recurrence of the trouble. Keep it handy. 60c. box.

Canada's Status

Canada's international status has been determined by its inclusion in the League of Nations as a distinct national entity, possessing the same standing and voting power as is accorded to sovereign nations, and obligated to assume the same responsibilities and discharge the same duties as are laid on all other nations.

This is an almost revolutionary change in status to that existing prior to the Great War. When, on August 4, 1914, Great Britain declared war on Germany, Canada, in common with the whole British Empire, was automatically at war. The Canadian Parliament did not make a declaration of war; it merely took official cognizance of the fact that a state of war existed. It remained, however, for the Canadian Parliament to decide the extent of Canada's participation in the war.

In future, however, as a full-fledged member of the League of Nations, Canada will have a voice in deciding issues of peace or war. Canada's vote will count just as effectively as the vote of Great Britain, France, Italy or any other country. This means that, whereas formerly Canada had no foreign policy, because it had no say in foreign affairs. It must decide issues of peace or war for itself.

This change in Canada's international status inevitably calls for some change in its position within the British Empire and in the relations hitherto existing between this Dominion and Great Britain. There are certain anomalies in the present relationship that must be corrected, but which in no wise weaken the Empire, or tend to Canada's withdrawal therefrom; on the contrary, such changes as are necessary should have the effect of adding strength to the Empire.

Recognized as a nation within a

League of Nations, Canada will have direct relations with all other nations and it is almost certain to follow that this Dominion will have its own accredited representatives at the capitals of other countries. The first step in the evolution of this policy is being taken in the appointment of a Canadian Minister to Washington. In the past, if the Canadian Government had representations to make to the United States Government it was necessary to transmit them to the Colonial Office in London, who in turn handed them over to the British foreign office, which sent them on with instructions to the British ambassador or at Washington. Replies to such representations had to return via the same route, and all negotiations between Ottawa and Washington had to be conducted through London. In future, we are to have direct dealings with the United States Government through a Canadian Minister at Washington.

Other important constitutional changes are up for discussion at Ottawa. Canada derives its constitution from the British Parliament, through the British North America Act. Any alteration or amendment to that constitution can only be affected by the British Parliament upon address of the Canadian Parliament. It is now proposed that Canada shall be given full power over its own constitution, to amend it from time to time as the people of Canada conceive in their own interest it should be amended and without recourse to the British Parliament. Australia and New Zealand possess such control over their constitution, and the Dominion Minister of Justice is now in negotiation with the several Provincial Governments with a view to having representations made to the British Government and Parliament for the conferring of similar powers upon Canada.

The view has long been held by many Canadians that a change should also be effected in our system of judicial appeals. At present the final court of appeal for Canada is the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in England. There is a growing belief that, so far as Canadian cases are concerned, the Supreme Court of Canada should be made the final court of appeal—that it should be supreme in fact as well as in name, and that all the expense and delay inseparable from appeals to London should be obviated.

Slowly, but none the less surely, Canada and the other self-governing Dominions of the British Empire seem to be moving towards the ultimate goal of independence in all foreign affairs, just as they have long been independent in all domestic matters. This does not mean that Canada will sever its connection with Britain, nor withdraw from the Empire. Not at all. It has been declared by the Prince of Wales, Lloyd George and others, that Canada is now a nation, a partner of Great Britain, occupying a position of equality with Britain in the Empire. If this is true, and no one disputes it, then existing anomalies whereby in some respects the British Government, Parliament and the courts can exercise a veto over Canada must be removed.

Evolving gradually, the apparent and would seem to be the constitutional establishment of Canada and the other self-governing Dominions as sovereign nations, all owing allegiance to one Crown, flying the same flag, working together in cordial co-operation for the good of all, but each mistress of their own affairs. In a word, a league of British nations within a League of Nations.

Alberta Potatoes for California

Recognition of Quality of Produce Grown in Western Canada

New markets for the potato crop of Alberta have been opened up by the shipment of a whole carload of potatoes consigned from Edmonton to San Francisco.

This shipment practically constitutes the first consignment of the kind ever sent from Edmonton direct to the Pacific Coast. While eastern markets have been plentiful in the past, direct orders for potatoes from California points have seldom reached this city and the placing of such a shipment with a city such as San Francisco is a recognition of the quality of produce grown in the province.

A SPRING TONIC AIDS EFFICIENCY

Lay Foundation of Good Health Now By Building Your Blood and Strengthening Your Nerves

The good old fashion of taking a tonic in the springtime, like most of the customs of our grandfathers, is based upon sound common sense and good medical practice. Winter is always a trying time, for those who are not in rugged physical health. Many women and children go through the winter on reserve strength they have stored up during the sunny, summer months, and grow increasingly pale and languid as the spring days approach. A tonic for the blood and nerves at this time will do much for such people, by putting color in the cheeks and banishing that tired feeling that worries thousands of people at this season of the year.

It is impossible to be energetic if your blood is thin and weak, or if your nerves are frayed or shattered. You cannot compete with others if you do not get refreshing sleep at night, or if your appetite is poor or your are losing weight. You need a tonic at this time to add to your efficiency now, as well as to save you from suffering later on. And in all the realm of medicine there is no better tonic than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills tone and enrich the blood, which circulates through every portion of the body, strengthening jaded nerves and ridding the organs of the sluggish feeling of new strength and energy to weak, easily tired, despondent men, women and children.

Mrs. J. N. McNeil, Glace Bay, N.S., says: "For years past my home has never been without Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I have good reason to praise them highly. Following an attack of grippe, I was left a badly run-down condition. I had no appetite and felt so weak I could scarcely go about the house. I was taking medicine but it was not helping me, and a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I used them for a time with the most beneficial results. My appetite improved, my strength returned and I was soon able to do all my housework. I now use the pills every spring and find them a splendid strength bringing tonic. I have recommended the pills to other friends who have used them with good results."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic, not a stimulant. They build up the blood, and through their use not only the disastrous after effects of influenza but also troubles due to poor blood such as anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion and the generally worn-out feeling that affects so many people, disappear. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Lumber Shortage in Alberta

Needs of Western Canada Should be Considered First

Curtailment of the amount of lumber exported from Canada is the request which the Alberta Association of Architects has put before the federal government. Local architects assert that the situation is desperate if the big building program in sight for the coming season is to be carried out. The association urges that the needs of Western Canada should be considered first and the exportation of lumber to the United States prohibited or curtailed until such time as there is an adequate supply of lumber for future building undertakings in Canada.

Many a train of thought carries no freight.

The Right Course

Work of Instructing British Columbia's Farmers of Tomorrow

Agriculture under competent teachers along practical lines is taking an increasingly important position in the curriculum of the public schools in the different municipalities of the lower Fraser Valley of British Columbia.

At the present time the class in agriculture of one of the high schools are taking a course in the proper feeding of live stock and are getting an insight into the different values of the various kinds of feeds for cattle, horses and sheep.

Last month the pupils were gaining useful knowledge about soils, their properties and fertilization. Ten schools in the same district are busy preparing plans for the school gardens. Poultry raising and the care of calves and pigs are also on the school program.

The teaching of nature-study in the school and home garden, and the emulating contests of school fairs are all factors which tend towards the development of the boys and girls of today, and will greatly assist them in becoming efficient farmers and farmer's wives in the coming years.

Canada's Tire Production

Figures made public in Montreal show that there were about 2,000,000 automobile tires manufactured in Canada last year, requiring about 8,000,000 square yards, or 12,000,000 to 16,000,000 pounds of tire fabric, and that only about one third of the fabric required in the manufacture of these tires was made in Canada. The remainder came from the United States. Increased production of tire fabric is now aimed at.

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of feet.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callus. Instantly it stops burning, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly No humbug!

Why the Printer lost his job

Out in Missouri a farmer gave a printing office an order for sale bills. The job was promised for June 30th. The date being the last day before the prolonged drought started, the printer decided to take a few parting drinks. He took several. Then he happened to remember the bills that were promised for delivery that day and staggered to the office to get out the job. The farmer called for the bills, paid for them, took them home, and the next day started to put them up. This is what he read when he came down to the list of articles offered for sale:

Twenty-five cows broke to work; 41 head of cultivators, coming in soon; 10 head of shovelling levers with scoops by side; 8 piano mares; 120 rods of canvas belting, better than new; Delaval cow, with ice cream attachment; McCormick binder, in foal; Poland China boiled, due to farrow in April; 14 head of chickens with grass seed attachments, in good working order; 2 J. I. Case riding mowers, good as new; spraying outfit, can be ridden by children; 15 bulleye, 70 bushels capacity, with spraying nozzle and other attachments; many other articles too numerous to mention, which I expect to get at night between now and date of sale.—Exchange.

"If you please," she said, "excuse me, but—you are Mr. Elden, aren't you?"

"Yes; can I help you in any way?"

The woman tilted a moment, but resumed soberly, "You will wonder at me coming to you, but I'm from the country. Did you think that?"

"I suspected it," said Dave, with a smile. "You knocked—" He paused.

"Like a country girl," he said, boldly.

She tilted again. "Well, I'm lost," she confessed. "I got off the train a short time ago. My aunt was to meet me, but there are such crowds in the street—I must have missed her. And I saw your name on the window, and I had heard of you. So I just thought I'd ask—if you would mind—showing me to this address."

She fumbled in her pocket, and Dave invited her into the office. There she produced a torn piece of paper with an address.

"Why, that's just a few blocks," said Dave. "I'll walk around with you." He turned for his hat, but at that moment there was another timid knock on the door. He opened it. A boy of eight or ten years stood outside.

"Can I come in?" the lad ventured.

"Why, of course you can. What is it, son?"

"Are you Mr. Elden?"

"Yes."

The lad looked shyly about the office. It was evident he was impressed with its magnificence. Suddenly he pulled off his hat, disclosing a shock of brown hair.

"Are you Mr. Elden that sells lots?"

"Yes. Or, rather, I did sell lots, but not many of late. Were you thinking of buying a few lots?"

"Did you sell lots to my father?"

"Well, if I knew your father's name perhaps I could tell you. Who is your father?"

"He's Mr. Merton. I'm his son. And he said to me, before he got so bad, he said, 'There's just one honest man in this city, and that's Mr. Elden. Is that you, Mr. Elden?'"

"Well, I hope it is, but I won't claim such a distinction. I remember your father very well. Did he say to me?"

"No, sir. He's too tick. He don't know anybody now. He didn't know me tonight." The boy's voice went thick, and he stopped and swallowed.

"And then I remembered what he said about you, and I just came. Was that all right, Mr. Elden?"

"You say your father is very sick?"

"He don't know anybody."

"Have you help—a doctor—a nurse?"

"No, sir. We haven't any money. My father spent it all for the lots that he bought from you."

Dave winced. Then, turning to the young woman, "I'm afraid this is a more urgent case than yours. I'll call a taxi to take you to your address."

To his surprise his visitor broke out in a shuddering laugh. She had scented herself on a deck, and was swinging one foot jauntily.

"It's all off," she said. "Say, Dave, you couldn't lose me in this burg. You don't remember me, do you? Well, all the better. I'm rather glad I broke down on this job. I used to be something of an actress, and I'd have put it over if it hadn't been for the kid. The fact is, Dave," she continued, "I was sent up here to decoy you. It wasn't fair fighting, and I didn't like it, but money has been mighty slow of late. I wonder—how much you'd give to know who sent me?"

Dave pulled some bills from his pocket and held them before her. She took them from his hand.

"Conward," she said.

Dave's blood went to his head. "The soundest!" he cried. "The best-down dog! There's more in this than appears on the surface."

"Sure there is," she said. "There's another woman. There always is."

Elden walked to his desk. From a drawer he took a revolver; toyed with it a moment in his hands; broke it open, crushed it full of cartridges and thrust it in his pocket.

The girl watched him with friendly interest. "Believe me, Dave," she said, "if Conward turns up missing I won't know a thing about a d—n thing."

For a moment he stood irresolute. He could only guess what Conward's plan had been, but that it had been diabolical and cowardly, and that it concerned Irene, he had no doubt. His impulse was to immediately confront Conward, force a confession, and deal with him as the occasion might seem to require. But his eye fell on the boy, with his shock of brown hair and wistful, half-frightened face.

"I'll go with you first," he said, with quick decision. Then to the girl, "Sorry I must turn you out, but this case is urgent."

"That's all right," she said. Suddenly there was a little catch in her voice. "I'm used to being turned out."

He shot a sharp glance at her. Her face was laughing. "You're too decent for your job," he said abruptly.

"Thank's, Dave," she answered, and he saw her eyes glitten. "That helps—some." And before he knew it she was into the street.

"All right, son," said Dave, taking up the matter now in hand. "What's your name—your first name?"

"Charlie."

"And your address?"

The boy mentioned a distant subdivision.

"That is out, isn't it? Well, we'll take the car. We'll run right out and see what is to be done. I guess I'd better call a doctor at once."

He went to the telephone and gave some directions. Then he and the boy walked to a garage, and in a few moments were humming along the by-street in the city.

Dave had already become engrossed in his errand of mercy, and his rage at Conward's treachery was temporarily dissipated from his mind. He chatted with the boy as he drove.

"You go to school?"

"Not this year. Father has been too sick. Of course, this is holidays, and he says he'll be all right before they're over."

Dave smiled grimly. "The incurable optimism of it," he murmured to himself. Then, "Of course, he will. We'll fix him up in no time with a good doctor and a good nurse."

They drove on through the calm night, leaving the city streets behind and following what was little more than a country trail. This was crossed in every direction, and at every possible angle, by just such other country trails, unravelling themselves into darkness. Here and there they bumped over pieces of graded street, infinitely rougher than the natural ground; once Dave stopped his front wheels into a collapsing water trench; once he just grazed an isolated by-drain. The car lights were out off by a shoulder of foothill; only their dull glow hung in the distant sky.

It was this one of their choice residential subdivisions," said Dave to himself, as with Charlie's guidance and his own in-born sense of location he threaded his way through the maze of diverging trails. "Fine business; fine business."

As the journey continued, the sense of self-reproach which had been at its height in him for many months became into dissipation. Here and there repeating the ironical phrase, "Fine business, fine business. Yes, I let Conward 'weigh the coal' all right."

The intrusion of Conward into his mind sent the blood to his head, but he thrust the thought from him. He cut short by the boy.

"We'll have to get out here," he said. "The bridge is down."

Investigation proved him to be right. A small bridge over a stream had collapsed, and was slowly disintegrating amid its own wreckage. Dave explored the stream bottom, getting muddy boots for his pains.

Then he ran the car a little to one side of the road, locked the switch, and walked on with the boy.

"Pretty lonely out here, isn't it?" he ventured.

"Oh, no. There is a street light we see in a little while it is behind the hill now. We see it from the corner of our shack. It's very cheery."

"Fine business," Dave repeated to himself. And this is how our big success was made. Well, the success has vanished as quickly as it came. I suppose there is a law somewhere that is not mocked."

They were passing through a settlement of crude houses, dimly visible in the twilight and by occasional yellow blurs from their windows. Before one of the meanest of these the boy at last stopped. The upper hinge of the door was broken, and a feeble light struggled through the space where it gaped outward. Charlie pulled the door open, and Dave entered.

At first his eyes could not take in the dim outlines before him; he was conscious of a very small and stuffy room with a peculiar odor which he attributed to an oil lamp burning on a box.

He walked over and turned the lamp up, but the boxes were a red sullen, smoking felt was its only response. Then he felt in his pocket, and struck a match.

The light revealed the dinginess of the little room. There was a bed, covered with musty, sagged clothing; a table, littered with broken and dirty dishes and pieces of stale food; a stove, cracked and greasy, and one or two bare boxes serving as articles of furniture. But it was to the bed Dave turned, and with another match, bent over the shrunken form that lay almost concealed amid the coarse coverings. He brought his face down close, then straightened up and steadied himself for a moment.

"He'll soon be well, don't you think, Mister?" He said he would be well when the holidays—

But Dave's expression stopped the boy, whose own face went suddenly wild with fear.

SHORT OF BREATH Could Hardly Walk Without Resting.

When you go to a physician to be examined for any heart trouble, one of the first questions he asks is: "Are you short of breath?"

Now, when the heart becomes affected there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness and weakness, all of which are signs of oppression and anxiety.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are what the remedy you require. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mr. Stephen Crouse, East Clifford, N.S., writes: "I suffered for five years with heart trouble. I could hardly walk from the house to the barn without resting, as I used to get so short of breath. Doctors could not help me. My wife told me to get a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and I felt better after taking them; three boxes made me quite well. I am now helping my son to work the farm, and can truthfully say I feel like a different man."

Valuable Mining Property

The Greatest Yielding Copper Mine On the Continent

The sale of the Flin Flon copper mine of La Pas in southern Manitoba to the International Nickel Company has just been announced. The purchase price was one million dollars.

Consequent on this purchase it is expected that a railway to the mine will be built in the near future, connecting with the Hudson's Bay Railway at a point about 42 mile north-east of the Pas and that a smelter will be built and water power which is located near the mine will be developed.

The proven ore body in the mine is twenty million tons, worth about 180 million dollars, which will make it the greatest yielding copper mine on the continent, states the Regina Post.

U.S. Would Remove Turks From Europe

Washington.—The original position of the United States government, that the Turks should be expelled from Europe is restated in a note to the allied supreme council, which has been prepared at the state department and which will be transmitted soon.

The communication is in reply to an enquiry from the French and British governments as to the views of the United States on the Turkish settlement. The position of the United States government is understood to be that there is no sound reason for retaining the Turkish capital in Europe. The United States is said to take the view that the contention that the expulsion of the Turks might be resented by the Mohammedans is not supported by the facts since the war in the near east was won largely by the aid of Mohammedans.

The United States, it is understood, desire that Armenia be set up as an independent state and that it embrace as much territory as the Armenian government can control. It also takes the position that any arrangement that is made with regard to Turkey should guarantee to all nations equal opportunities for commerce and that no belligerent should be given paramount claims in any part of the near East.

The position of the United States, it is said is also that in any arrangement for the government of Constantinople and the Turkish states, a place for the participation of Russia should be made, as the United States government is convinced that no plan of settlement can be successful in the long run which does not take into account the interest of Russia in the matter.

To Restore Order

Alies to Allow Despatch of Ebert Forces Into Ruhr Valley

Paris.—Two German officers, who arrived here from Berlin to explain to the allies the necessity for permitting the German army to enter the occupied zone to restore order, saw Premier Millerand and told him the Ebert government had ample forces ready to deal with the situation in the Ruhr valley. It is understood on good authority the allies have decided to give the permission. The French government would have preferred inter-allied action in the occupied zone, while the British and Italians favored granting permission for operations by the Germans. The French move was on the point in view of the dependence of France on supplies of coal from the Ruhr district.

French coal production has decreased from the old figure of 40,000,000 tons to an average of about 18,000,000 tons yearly. By the terms of the treaty of Versailles Germany is bound to cover the deficiency up to a total of 20,000,000 a year. On the restoration of order in the Ruhr valley, therefore, depends largely the continuation of French industries.

Will Keep Down Lumber Prices

Manufacturers Will Do Everything Possible to Prevent Any New Advance

Calgary.—That there will be no further increase in the price of lumber if the manufacturer can possibly help it, was the statement of I. R. Poole, secretary of the Mountain Lumberman's Association, today. Mr. Poole said that this decision had been arrived at notwithstanding the increased cost of production.

"If the manufacturers can control the situation the price of lumber will certainly not further advance," he definitely stated. Another matter which occupied considerable time of the convention was the gathering together of facts for presentation to the Canadian Board of Commerce, covering 1919 operations. These will be presented to the board in due course. Mr. Poole stated that these figures will prove conclusively that the manufacturers were not in the "profiteering" class.

Urges Energetic Steps To Enforce Treaty

Andre Tardieu Says France Has Been Left Burden

Paris.—An immediate meeting of allied leaders to decide upon energetic steps to insure enforcement of the treaty of Versailles was urged by Andre Tardieu, former commissioner of Franco-American relations, in an interview here.

"The treaty already appears to have been violated as much as any treaty could be," Tardieu said. "It is urged that the allied governments meet to decide upon immediate drastic steps."

Tardieu believed the difficulties in allied-German relations will continue to increase rapidly, until the allies decide upon immediate drastic steps, at once and enforce them firmly. Enforcement of the treaty practically has been left to France, Tardieu said, and France's position is probably weakened by the movement of the peace conference to London. The recent "intermittent meetings" of the congress have been characterized neither by firmness nor unity of direction, Tardieu believed.

Daniels Again Criticised

Statement That U.S. Navy Department Was in State of Chaos When War Was Declared

Washington.—Not only was the navy department without comprehensive plans for naval participation in a war when the United States severed relations with Germany, but Secretary Daniels disapproved the general plan drawn up by the bureau of operations and submitted in March, 1917, Chairman Harris Laning, former assistant chief of navigation told the senate investigating committee.

As a result of this alleged lack of preparation, the witness said, the navy department was virtually in a state of chaos the day the United States entered the war.

Personal characteristics of Secretary Daniels often made it impossible to obtain approval of important plans and policies, Chairman Laning asserted, as the personal interest taken by him in minor affairs "occupied so much time that he never had much left to give us for really important problems."

Chairman Laning, at the time war was declared, said there was not a sufficient reserve.

Lemieux Speaks On Bi-Lingual Question

Says Exclusiveness is Not A Policy, But A Blunder

London.—The King today received the Hon. Rodolphe and Mrs. Lemieux, and handed them the military cross won by their son. Mr. Lemieux was later entertained by the Empire Parliamentary Association at Westminster, Sir Auckland Geddes presiding at the function. Mr. Lemieux spoke at length on the bi-lingual question, and said in part: "I am not speaking as a party man but as a Canadian who gave his all for the cause of small nationalities. From Sir Wilfrid Laurier I learned isolation and exclusiveness is not a policy, but a blunder."

The gathering was largely attended by members of the house of commons and the house of lords, acceptances including ex-premier Asquith, the Duke of Devonshire, Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Bonham, Lord Islington, and Hon. Walter Long. General Seeley and Ben Tillett were also present.

France May Retaliate

Further Decline in Franc Value Provoked Fresh Discussions

Paris.—Sharp declines in the value of the franc as compared with American dollars and the British pound sterling, while the German mark, despite disorders in the Ruhr district, made a substantial gain, have provoked the fresh discussion of the exchange situation and the renewal of talk of rigid restrictions on imports as a measure to check the depreciation of the franc. Financial authorities are of the opinion that restrictions afford the only immediate remedy and predict an early prohibition of all luxuries and articles which might be described as superfluous.

New Home For Former Crown Prince

Said to Have Declined Residence Near Exiled Father

The Hague.—Announcement by the premier today that the Dutch government had granted the Island of Weirlog to the former German crown prince as a place of residence is believed here to complete the steps by which Holland seeks to meet allied demands as to the safe keeping of former Emperor William and his son. Reports are current that the crown prince asked that his residence be fixed on the island, and declined an opportunity to live near his father.

French Peace Loan

Paris.—Unofficial figures of the amount subscribed to the peace loan place the total at between 15,000,000,000 and 16,000,000,000 francs. There is a larger proportion of currency than in the former loans.

Soviets Are Still Active In German Revolt

Thoroughbreds From Royal Windsor Stable

Prince of Wales May Have Horses On Western Tracks at Summer Fairs

Saskatoon.—The Prince of Wales' thoroughbred race horses from Windsor stables, England, will probably be seen on the western Canadian race tracks during the big summer fairs this year.

J. Carlyle, manager of the Alberta ranch, which His Royal Highness purchased on his Canadian tour last summer, has gone east to superintend the unloading of the horses, which are expected to arrive from the old country in May or June.

The string now numbers seven thoroughbred animals, most of them two years old. They are of the purest English stock, and while they are being sent to Canada primarily for breeding purposes it is anticipated some of them will be raced around the western Canada fair circuits this year.

Are Not All Soviets

Many Germans are Fighting Against Government for Anti-Monarchist Movement

London.—Not all of the workmen who have taken up arms against the government in Germany are imbued with Spartan ideas, according to office today. Information gathered by British representatives in Germany show many workmen intend to fight until certain anti-monarchist representatives are included in the new cabinet. The Essen disturbances, which are the most serious in the country, are described, however, as purely Bolshevik.

The indications were, it is said, that the peace conference is gradually coming to the British idea that the Germans should be left to settle their own internal troubles while the peace treaty is not violated.

To Banish Horses

Denver.—Denver is to banish the horse from her streets if a bill now before the city council becomes law. No horses, cattle, sheep or swine may after January 1, 1925, be kept in the city limits or driven on the streets.

Turk Leader is Arrested

Constantinople.—Ali Said Pasha, military governor of Constantinople, has been arrested by the British forces in that city.

Leipzig.—Halle, the large industrial town just to the northwest of this city, is completely cut off from communication. Latest reports were that the troops had gained the upper hand after a considerable part of the city had been reduced to ruins.

Saxon troops to reinforce the government's contingent in Halle, are on the way there. In other nearby communities the turmoil terminated which had been existing for more than a week. As far as can be learned the workmen's revolt in this section is directed against the military elements and shows no Bolshevik tendencies. The single exception is the town of Falkenstein, southern Saxony, where a soviet is said to have been established by Communist leaders.

Both wings of the Socialist-Democrats are demanding the reservations of martial law and the withdrawal of the troops. These are among the workmen's principal demands.

In Leipzig the stone walls of the great railway station of the Volkshaus and dozens of buildings are pelted from top to bottom from machine gun and rifle fire, while hand grenades have left many ugly gashes.

The normal life of the city is being revived, but the stranger instantly detects a feeling of excitement and expectancy.

It is estimated that there are less than 1,000 Communists in Leipzig, although the Independent Socialists are very strong.

According to conservative estimates about 10,000 carried arms in Leipzig last week, and beginning with the first clash, March 15, when 17 persons were killed and 60 wounded, there was almost constant street fighting up to last Saturday.

Essen Is Now Normal

Soviet Government Leader Says He Does Not Fear Intervention From Allies

Amsterdam.—Conditions at Essen present a normal outward appearance except for the presence of armed labor guards, red flags, armored automobiles and a few bullet marks on the buildings, according to the correspondent of the Telegraph who arrived at Dusseldorf. A member of the soviet government at Essen told the correspondent he had no fear of allied intervention so long as the allied missions were safe.

The correspondent found the soviet administration proclaiming the necessity of returning to work and admonishing against plundering.

Boys of the Two Uplifted Fingers

Scout Movement Is the World-Wide Brotherhood of Boys

The year of 1912 was conspicuous in that there was officially originated in England the Boy Scout movement, which since that time has spread throughout the Empire and into most of the countries of the world, until today it can with truth be said of the Boy Scout movement that it is the world-wide brotherhood of boys.

The movement had originated a few years prior to this date, and before the Royal Charter of incorporation was issued there were troops in existence in various parts of the empire. During the initial years of the movement, each and every Scoutmaster was confronted with the problems of what to do with the junior boy, that boy that was too young to become a Scout, that boy that persisted in his demand to be allowed to enter this world-wide brotherhood of boys.

It was not until 1914 that the great chief in this world-wide brotherhood launched his answer to the demand of the junior boy and submitted to the world the Wolf Cub programme in the same quiet and masterful way that he had submitted the Boy Scout programme to it six or seven years previous.

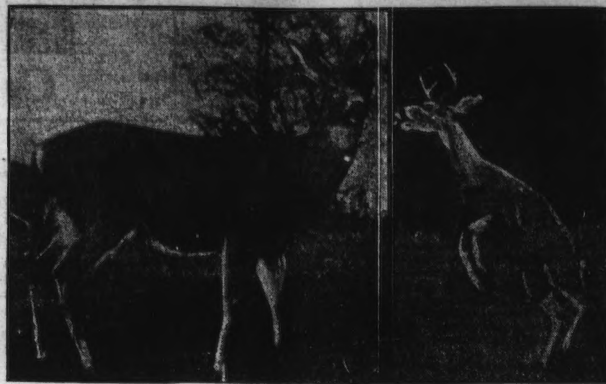

"Give us the young," says Benjamin Kidd, "and we will create a new mind and a new earth in a single generation." There is no objective which a people or race can set before itself which is not possible through the organization and transmission of an ideal in its social heredity.

Up until this time no programme had taken account of the younger boy in any real constructive way, for it was only beginning to be realized that the young people must be the first line in everything that concerns future regeneration and reconstruction. No programme is constructive or worth the paper it is written on that does not take into account the young people. In providing for future navies and fortifications, the world must not neglect to provide for those invisible fortifications of the soul which mean more to a nation's strength than do the bulwarks of war. The Wolf Cub movement is an honest attempt on the part of its founder and its officers to give expression to these truths.

It is to be regretted that the world of today is saturated with a contempt of law. It matters not whether that law is civil or religious; whether enforced by home, school, church or state, the alarming tendency is to flout it. There is an overwhelming desire to be rid of every vestige of restraint and this has taken too firm a hold of our boys, as evidenced by the increasing prevalence of juvenile crimes. No country or community can afford to leave its childhood and youth without the sound lessons of subjection and control, for if these are omitted, disrespect of right and disobedience to law are bound to develop. What will it avail any nation if its children grow up physically strong and mentally weak?

The average boy, if given a fair chance, is a law-respecter and enforcer rather than a law-breaker. The history of the Scout movement amply demonstrates this. The Wolf Cub

An Island Where Deer Are Safe

Listening to the Barking of Hounds on a Distant Island.

Taking an Apple from the Fingers of a Visitor

The deep music of a deerhound's voice came faintly down the wind; shortly it blended with the sharper voice of a hungry cougar. The scream of a hungry cougar is not more terrifying to the timid deer of the British Columbia coast than the bay of the hounds on the trail. When they hear it they get up and go—straight for water.

The little spike buck, born a few seasons before on the rugged, forest-clad coast of the Pacific province, lifted his head. His eyes and his ears, his very pose, displayed the high tension of his taut nerves. He looked into the forest of the island on which he stood, and saw nothing alarming. He turned and stared across the water toward Nelson Island. The only thing that caught his eye that did not denote restful nature in primitive grandeur was a smudge of smoke that emerged from the horizon and showed that a C.P.R. coasting steamer was out-bound from Powell River. Then the boom of the hound's voice rolled again across the waters from Nelson Island. The deer moved nervously, looked round again—and calmly bent his head to bite a mouthful of grass. He was safe. He was on Hardy Island. Hardy Island is the city of refuge to all the deer that know about it. Three years ago it was good hunting grounds. Today it is taboo to men with guns, and hell pops, as the saying goes, if men with both guns and dogs appear. It is unlawful to hunt deer with dogs in British Columbia, but it is still done in certain districts, in spite of law. Two years ago, or perhaps slightly more than that, Mr. C. J. Leyland, of England, purchased Hardy Island, a gem of land situated just off Nelson Island, at the mouth of Jervis Inlet. He bought it to experiment with British trees in the B.C. climate. There were 2,500 acres of rich lands and forests, and there was a good orchard. He placed a watchman, Tom Brazil, on the property, and did no more toward development, preferring to await the end of the war. Brazil, a lover of animals, caught two of the wild deer that frequently swam to the island from the other nearby lands. He tamed them. They in turn brought other wild ones. Many of them had been run to water by dogs and took refuge on Hardy Island. There, seeing how intimate the original tame pair were with the man who controlled the orchards where the luscious apples grew, the wild newcomers gradually grew intimate, too. Today a herd of thirty deer, most of them born in wildness, respond to the voice of Tom Brazil when he calls. Some of them will step forward from the herd when called by name. They have no fear at all of man, when on Hardy Island. Sometimes they swim to other parts of the coast, and range about a bit, but they come back, often fagged from some fierce run and swim.

Tom Brazil's herd is becoming a byword on the coast, but no dog and no man dare brave what might happen should he try to hunt on the island of refuge. So the deer are fat, are bringing new little lives into the world, and are adding to their numbers by recruit volunteers from the wild ranges where such safety is not known.—L. V. K.

Earlier Civilization Than That of Egypt

Interest in Benin, Africa, Scarcely to Be Surpassed

Archaeologists today think that Benin, Africa, may be a land where records of an earlier civilization than that of Egypt are to be found. But whatever the antiquity of Benin, its present day interest is scarcely to be surpassed.

Here are to be found a people so benighted that, until a quarter of a century ago, they put a taboo upon exportation of all their products except palm oil, and practised human sacrifice to an appalling extent; yet so advanced that they knew the processes of weaving and the arts of carving and metal work long before the white man came.

Concerning an early attempt to Christianize the Benin there is told a story of tragic human appeal. Portuguese missionaries were working on the outskirts of the Benin country, which lies west of the Niger, in what is now the British protectorate of Southern Nigeria. The Benin monarch heard of their activities, and sent word that in exchange for one white wife he would enroll all his subjects in the Christian church. A member of the sisterhood volunteered to accept the hand of "his sable majesty," and he is said to have treated her most kindly, although her sacrifice wrought no appreciable change in the native religion.

The high cost of clothes bothers the Benin boy and girl not at all, for in token of allegiance to their king they wear none. When the king provides a youth with clothes he becomes a citizen, and usually with the bestowal of the clothes the king also selects for him a wife, in token of his maturity. The man may choose as many additional wives as he wishes and can support.

Though polygamy is practised almost universally, infidelity is punishable by death. Of the upper classes, one traveler said that he never had met with any black prince "so sensible and well-informed as these men, who had so noble and commanding an appearance."

Most explorers have attested to the kindness and generosity of the natives, also to their light-fingered qualities, and all agree that to infringe upon their religious beliefs was a sure route to the sacrificial crosses where human crucifixion was practised by the wholesale.

It was not until after a massacre of Europeans in 1897, when a British expedition was sent from Gwato, the port city of the Benin country, to Benin City, twenty-five miles inland, that these fanatical sacrifices were eliminated.

The massacre occurred when seven unarmed British officials, on the way to Benin City, were set upon and murdered along with their two hundred native attendants. The punitive expedition captured the king and three of his chiefs. The latter were tried and condemned to death, the sentence of two being executed, while the third committed suicide. The king, also tried, was exiled. The trials took place in the native court house in the Benin capital.

Alfalfa Mill for Coaldale

Huge Alfalfa Yield in the Lethbridge and Coaldale Areas of Southern Alberta

One of the results of the huge alfalfa yield in the Lethbridge and Coaldale areas of Southern Alberta during the past season, and an indication of the confidence of the farmers there that this is merely a beginning of the yields of this fodder crop that will be produced, is a local company by the purchase by a local company of an alfalfa mill costing $15,000.

This mill will bring the whole alfalfa plant into a meal, which, it is declared, has proven the most economical way to feed alfalfa. Alfalfa chop has been used in the past, but the new machine will turn out the actual pulp, and its installation will mark the advent of a new and important industry in the development of the district.

What Belgium Has Done

The Most Intensively Cultivated Country in the World

The progress toward the restoration of pre-war conditions which Belgium has already accomplished is little less than marvelous. In less than a year her coal production—the basis of modern industry—reached 80 per cent; sugar refineries, 100 per cent; cotton looms, 60 per cent; wool products, 75 per cent, and shoes, 70 per cent. Even steel production, which suffered most, reached 30 per cent.

When Germany seized and carried away the machinery of Belgian factories, the confident expectation was to so crush out industrial production as to leave the Belgians reduced to agriculture. But the tide which ebbed so fiercely has been flowing back, until of 9,797 machines of which a record was kept, there had, by the end of 1919, been returned 5,069 machines, and the remainder was still coming back at the rate of 30 carsloads a day. During the war 1,366 miles of railroad track and 1,419 bridges were destroyed, and already these have been reconstructed.

We are accustomed to think of China and Japan as densely settled countries, but in 1913 Belgium was the most densely populated and intensively cultivated country in the world. Its 11,373 square miles make it about the size of Maryland, with one man in every six a land owner. To such perfection had agriculture been developed that three-fifths of the total area was under cultivation, producing an average of $100 per acre—a record equaled by no other country. A 60-mile pipe line for pumping beet juice from 14 gathering stations to the sugar refineries illustrates the advanced development of its agricultural industries. In devastated farm lands Belgium was fortunate in losing only 70,000 acres—less than one per cent of its total area.

Freedom from general strikes and a national determination to restore normal exports, on which the country so largely depends, are hastening a return to prosperity; and wages have been materially increased, but are still low compared with other countries. As pre-war standards were maintained up to the time of the armistice. Instead of the spirit of extravagance which prevails in some other countries, the Belgians preserve that same national thrift which for so many years made it famous as affording the best living for the least money of any country maintaining modern conditions. Another year or two will almost restore pre-war production in most lines. H. H. Windsor in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Wealth From Waste

Production of Gas From Straw and the Briquetting of Lignite

A famous mustard maker used to remark that he owed his fortune not to mustard which people ate, but to what they left on the sides of their plates. That is one example of wealth derived from waste. But a correspondent has been good enough to draw our attention to other sources of wealth—to be derived from materials which would otherwise be wasted. Dr. R. D. McLaurin, who was until recently Professor of Chemistry in the University of Saskatchewan, has been particularly identified with research in the direction of the production of gas from straw and the briquetting of lignite. In terms of petrol, the gas from straw wasted annually in Western Canada would be 470,000,000 gallons, which is more than one-ninth of the total production of petrol in the world. Perhaps someone will apply Dr. McLaurin's calculations to South Africa. He has extended them to the United States, where he says that 200,000,000 tons of maize stalks are wasted annually. Could some Rhodesians run their agricultural machinery in whole or in part from the burning of their waste? It almost looks like it.—Bulawayo Chronicle.

"You know, old man, I was going to ask you to dinner with me tonight, but I just heard Smith remark that you were going to eat with him."
"Oh—what time do you eat?"
"Well, that's all right, old boy. Smith doesn't eat till seven—Judge."

Storm Loss of Ten Millions

Officials of the Nova Scotia Highway Board, today stated that the damage to the bridges in Annapolis county during the recent floods will be at least ten million dollars and that it will be months before vehicle traffic across the Annapolis and Lequille rivers can be resumed. Four steel bridges, two wooden bridges, and at least a dozen smaller ones were demolished to a greater or less degree.

Everybody Knows Dr. Chase's Receipt Book

And His Family Medicines

MOST people first knew Dr. Chase through his Receipt Book. Its reliability and usefulness made him friends everywhere.

When he put his Nerve Food, Kidney-Liver Pills and other medicines on the market they received a hearty welcome, and their exceptional merit has kept them high in the public esteem.

Take Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for example. There is no treatment to be compared to them as a means of regulating the liver, kidneys and bowels and curing constipation, biliousness, kidney disease and indigestion.

Discovery of a new star, the sixth in the constellation of Sagittarius, was announced by the Harvard College observatory recently. The Nova was found by Miss Woods of the observatory staff on photo plates taken in 1905. It does not appear on recent plates.

He Says They Are Surely the Best

FRANK HANNON SWEARS BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

States that they cured his backache after other medicines had failed and that he would not be without them. Corcoran, Joliet Co., Que. March 28.—(Special).—Claiming that he is completely cured of backache from which he was a severe sufferer, Mr. Frank Hannon, a well-known resident here, is shouting the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"After trying various medicines for my backache," Mr. Hannon states, "I finally bought a supply of Dodd's Kidney Pills. From the start of the treatment I felt benefited and now I am completely cured."

"I therefore proclaim Dodd's Kidney Pills the finest on the market. I would not be without them."

Dodd's Kidney Pills strike right at the seat of the trouble, the kidneys. They are no cure-all. They are simply and purely a kidney remedy. But as cured kidneys strain all the impurities, all the seeds of disease, out of the blood, Dodd's Kidney Pills naturally get credit for curing a number of different diseases.

Women's Institutes in Alberta

Increased During the Past Year By More Than Three Thousand

The steadily increasing influence and importance in the life of the province of the Women's Institutes in Alberta was demonstrated at their first annual convention held at Edmonton.

In the course of the convention the superintendent made the statement that the membership of these institutes had increased during the past year by more than three thousand, making a total of 13,150 members in the province and giving Alberta the second largest institute in Canada.

An immense amount of work has been done by these institutes, especially in the rural settlements, where their effect is particularly beneficial. The curriculum includes lectures and demonstrations in dozens of different lines; there were fifty-four short courses of instruction in home nursing, care of the sick, and first aid, which were delivered by the provincial health nurses of the department of health. Twenty-one demonstrations were given. Sixteen short courses in cookery, and numberless other demonstrations and lectures in rural sociology, legal status of women, civics, improved schools, the feeding and health of children, etc. In addition to this, an immense amount of relief work has been carried on and thousands of dollars raised throughout the province, distributed for this purpose.

Health is real wealth.

Breeding Draft Horses

Demand for Heavy Draft Animals

Was Never Better

From reports received from every part of the country it is apparent that there are fewer good draft colts from one to three years of age than ever before. The country is overstocked with light nondescript colts and horses for which there is no demand and for which there is not likely to be any great demand in the future. The world is short of heavy draft animals, and the outlook for good prices for this class of stock weighing from 1650 to 2000 lbs. at maturity was never better. France alone of the European countries is in the market for 60,000 heavy draft horses, for which they will pay good prices.

Farmers and breeders should not fail to breed every good draft male available this year, and they should be bred to the biggest draft stallion available. Breed is not so important as size, quality and weight. The breeds that produce these desirable qualities with greatest uniformity may be listed in the following order: Percherons, Belgians and Clydesdales. Breeders desirous of purchasing good sires should select not only good individual stallions, but they should select to it that they are bred from sires of cheap fat stallions of poor ancestry.

Farmers should breed only from the best if they wish to produce desirable draft horses for the future.—By Prof. W. L. Carlyle.

Intelligence of Horses Wantmore Peanut Cookies

A Pony That is Credited With the Best of Table Manners

The high intelligence of horses was superbly demonstrated during the war and some day a lover of the horse will collate the many wonderful incidents in which he played a leading part. One of these will be the vagaries of a Canadian General's thoroughbred, which again and again refused to budge to the spur at times when there was apparently no evidence of the slightest danger. Twice he saved his master's life by deliberate acts of insubordination. The latest year a pony that had a race-track reputation is worth repeating in this connection. Every morning its owner brought this pony into the dining-room of the house in which he was billeted, and led him round the table. The pony was offered all sorts of dainties, but he would only lick slices of bread and butter, of which he was inordinately fond. It was not a big room, and there was not much space between the wall and the table, so if he had shown any restlessness the table and all that was on it must have been demolished. He, however, behaved always with the manners of a retriever dog, and only the slices of bread and butter had to be replenished.

A Happy Family

BY DR. S. C. BOWERS.

A happy family is one that can sit down to the table with keen appetites and good cheer. Plenty of the out-of-doors and cleanliness, inside and outside of the body, will make for health, wealth and happiness. Your doctor will tell you that anything from a headache to the most serious illness may result from allowing food to ferment in the intestines. The first thing to do in case you feel mean, lousy, dull, perhaps feverish, is to flush the liver and kidneys, drink plenty of water, and take a dose of castor oil, or, something better, made of May-apple, aloin and jalap, and long sold by almost every druggist as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. This may save you from a fit of sickness, remove the poisons from the system and give the tissues of the body a chance to build up and resist disease.

People are realizing more and more that the kidneys, just as do the bowels, need to be flushed occasionally. The kidneys are an eliminative organ and are constantly working, separating the poisons from the blood. Uric acid backs up into the system, causing rheumatism, neuritis, dropsy and many other serious disturbances.

This can be avoided by stimulating the kidneys to increased action, and because of its tonic effect on these organs I would advise any one to get Auric (anti-uric acid) which is to be had nowadays for fifty cents, at almost any drug store.
